On the Farm, there are animals of different kinds.

Animals that lay in between the stables or even near the farmers' truck

Animals of different colors and different size

Animals that go moo, neigh, and cluck

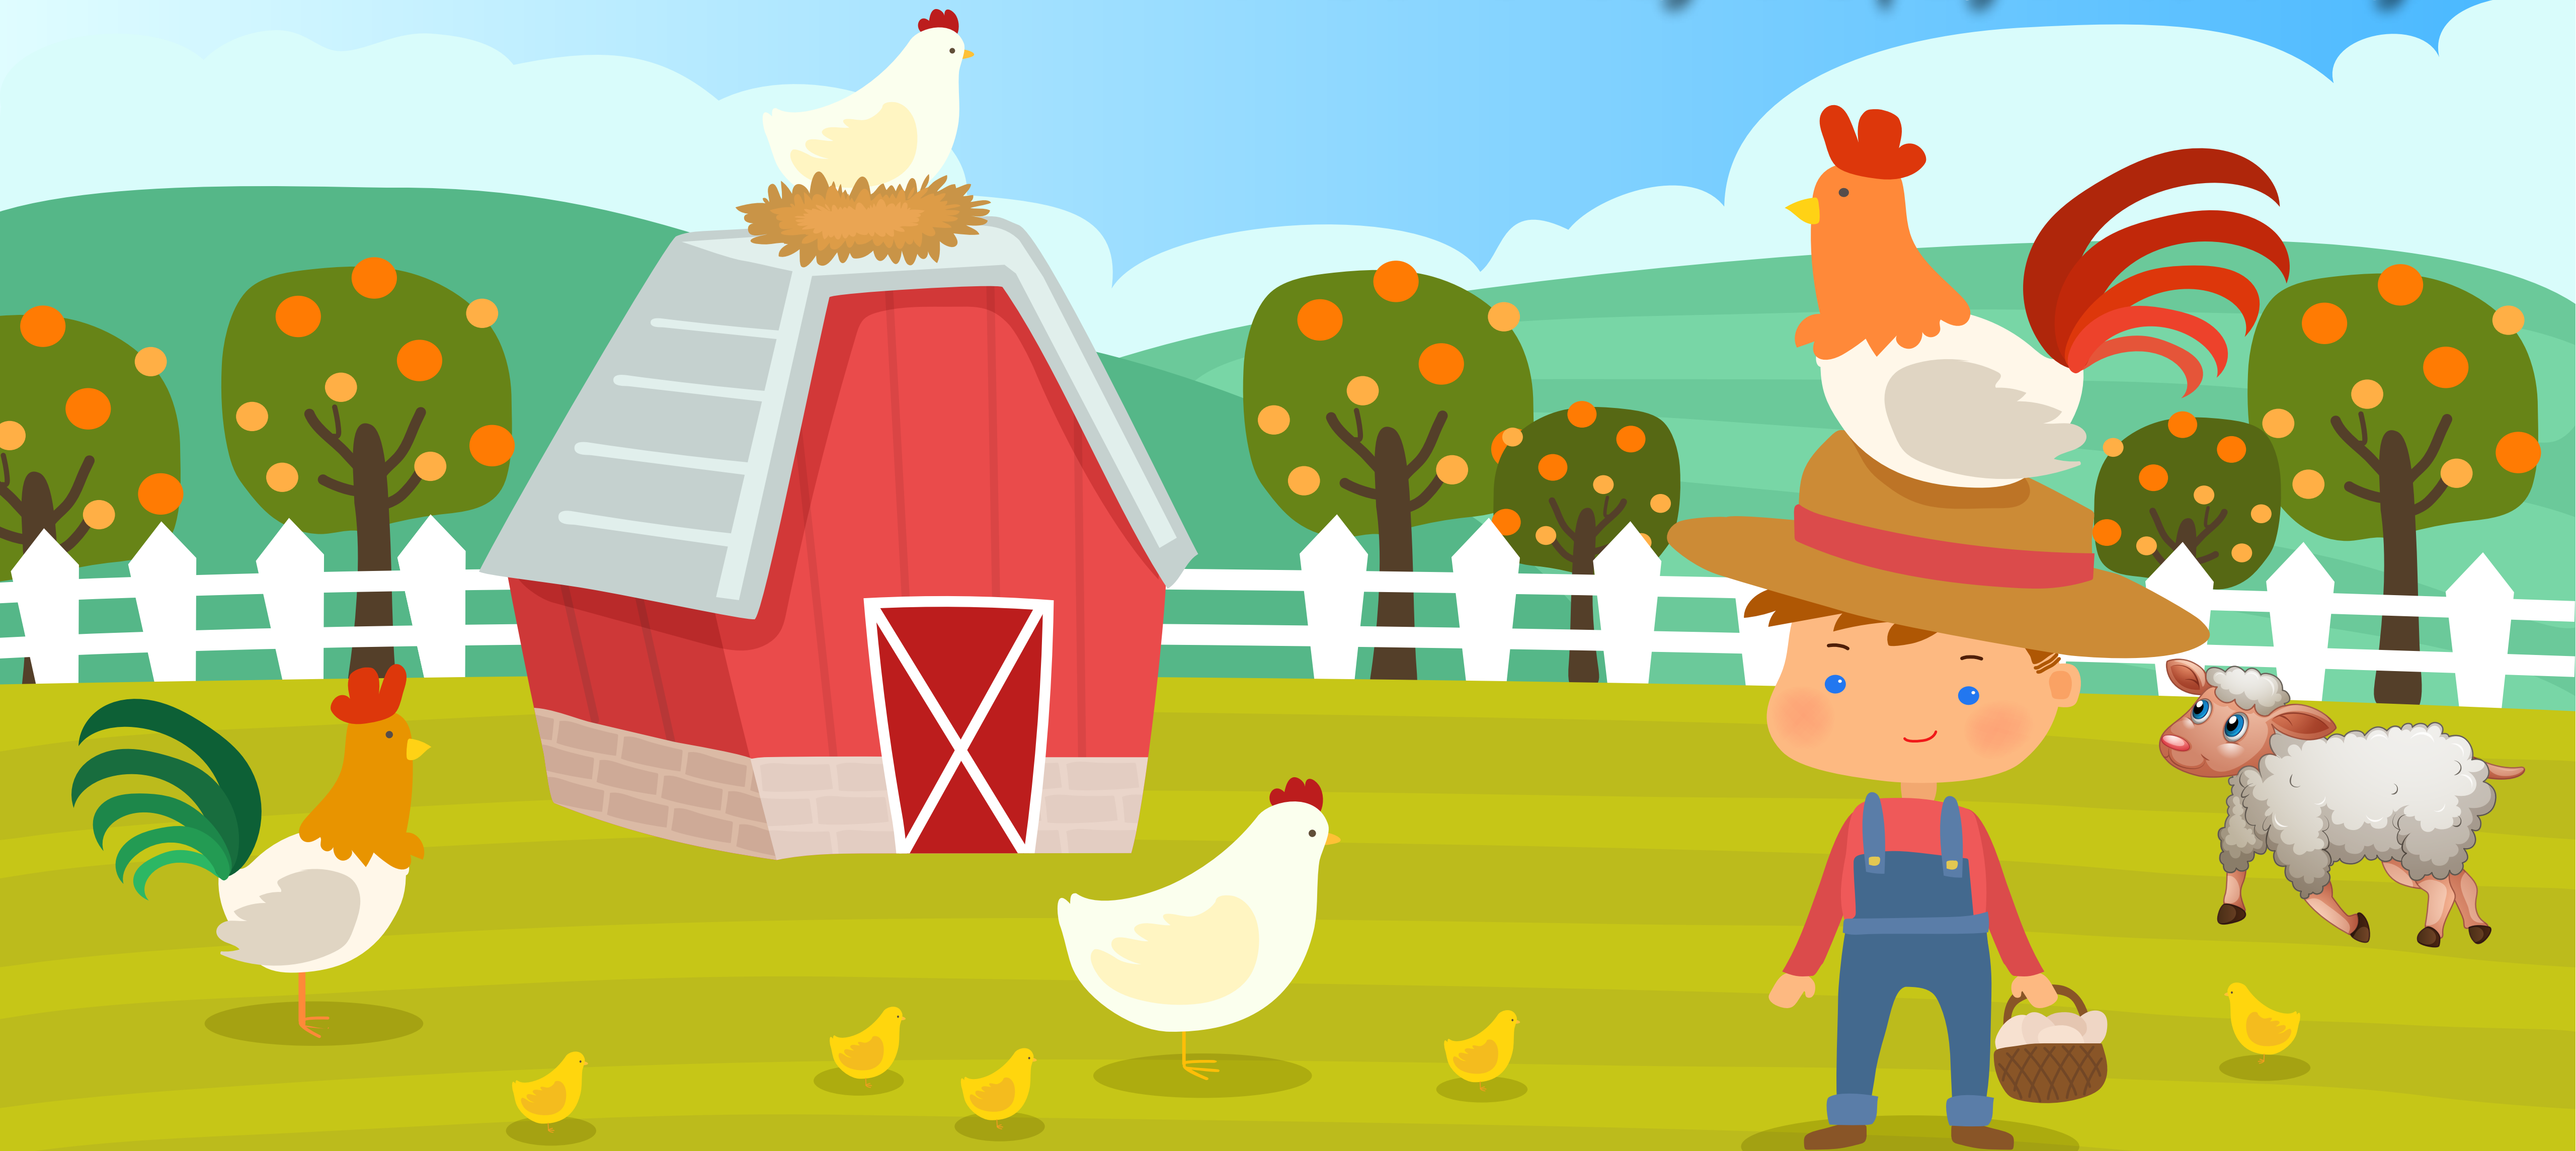

Animals that run around all day

And animals that stay up most of the night

Animals that all live under one roof

Animals that laugh and play without a fright

The animals love the others' uniqueness

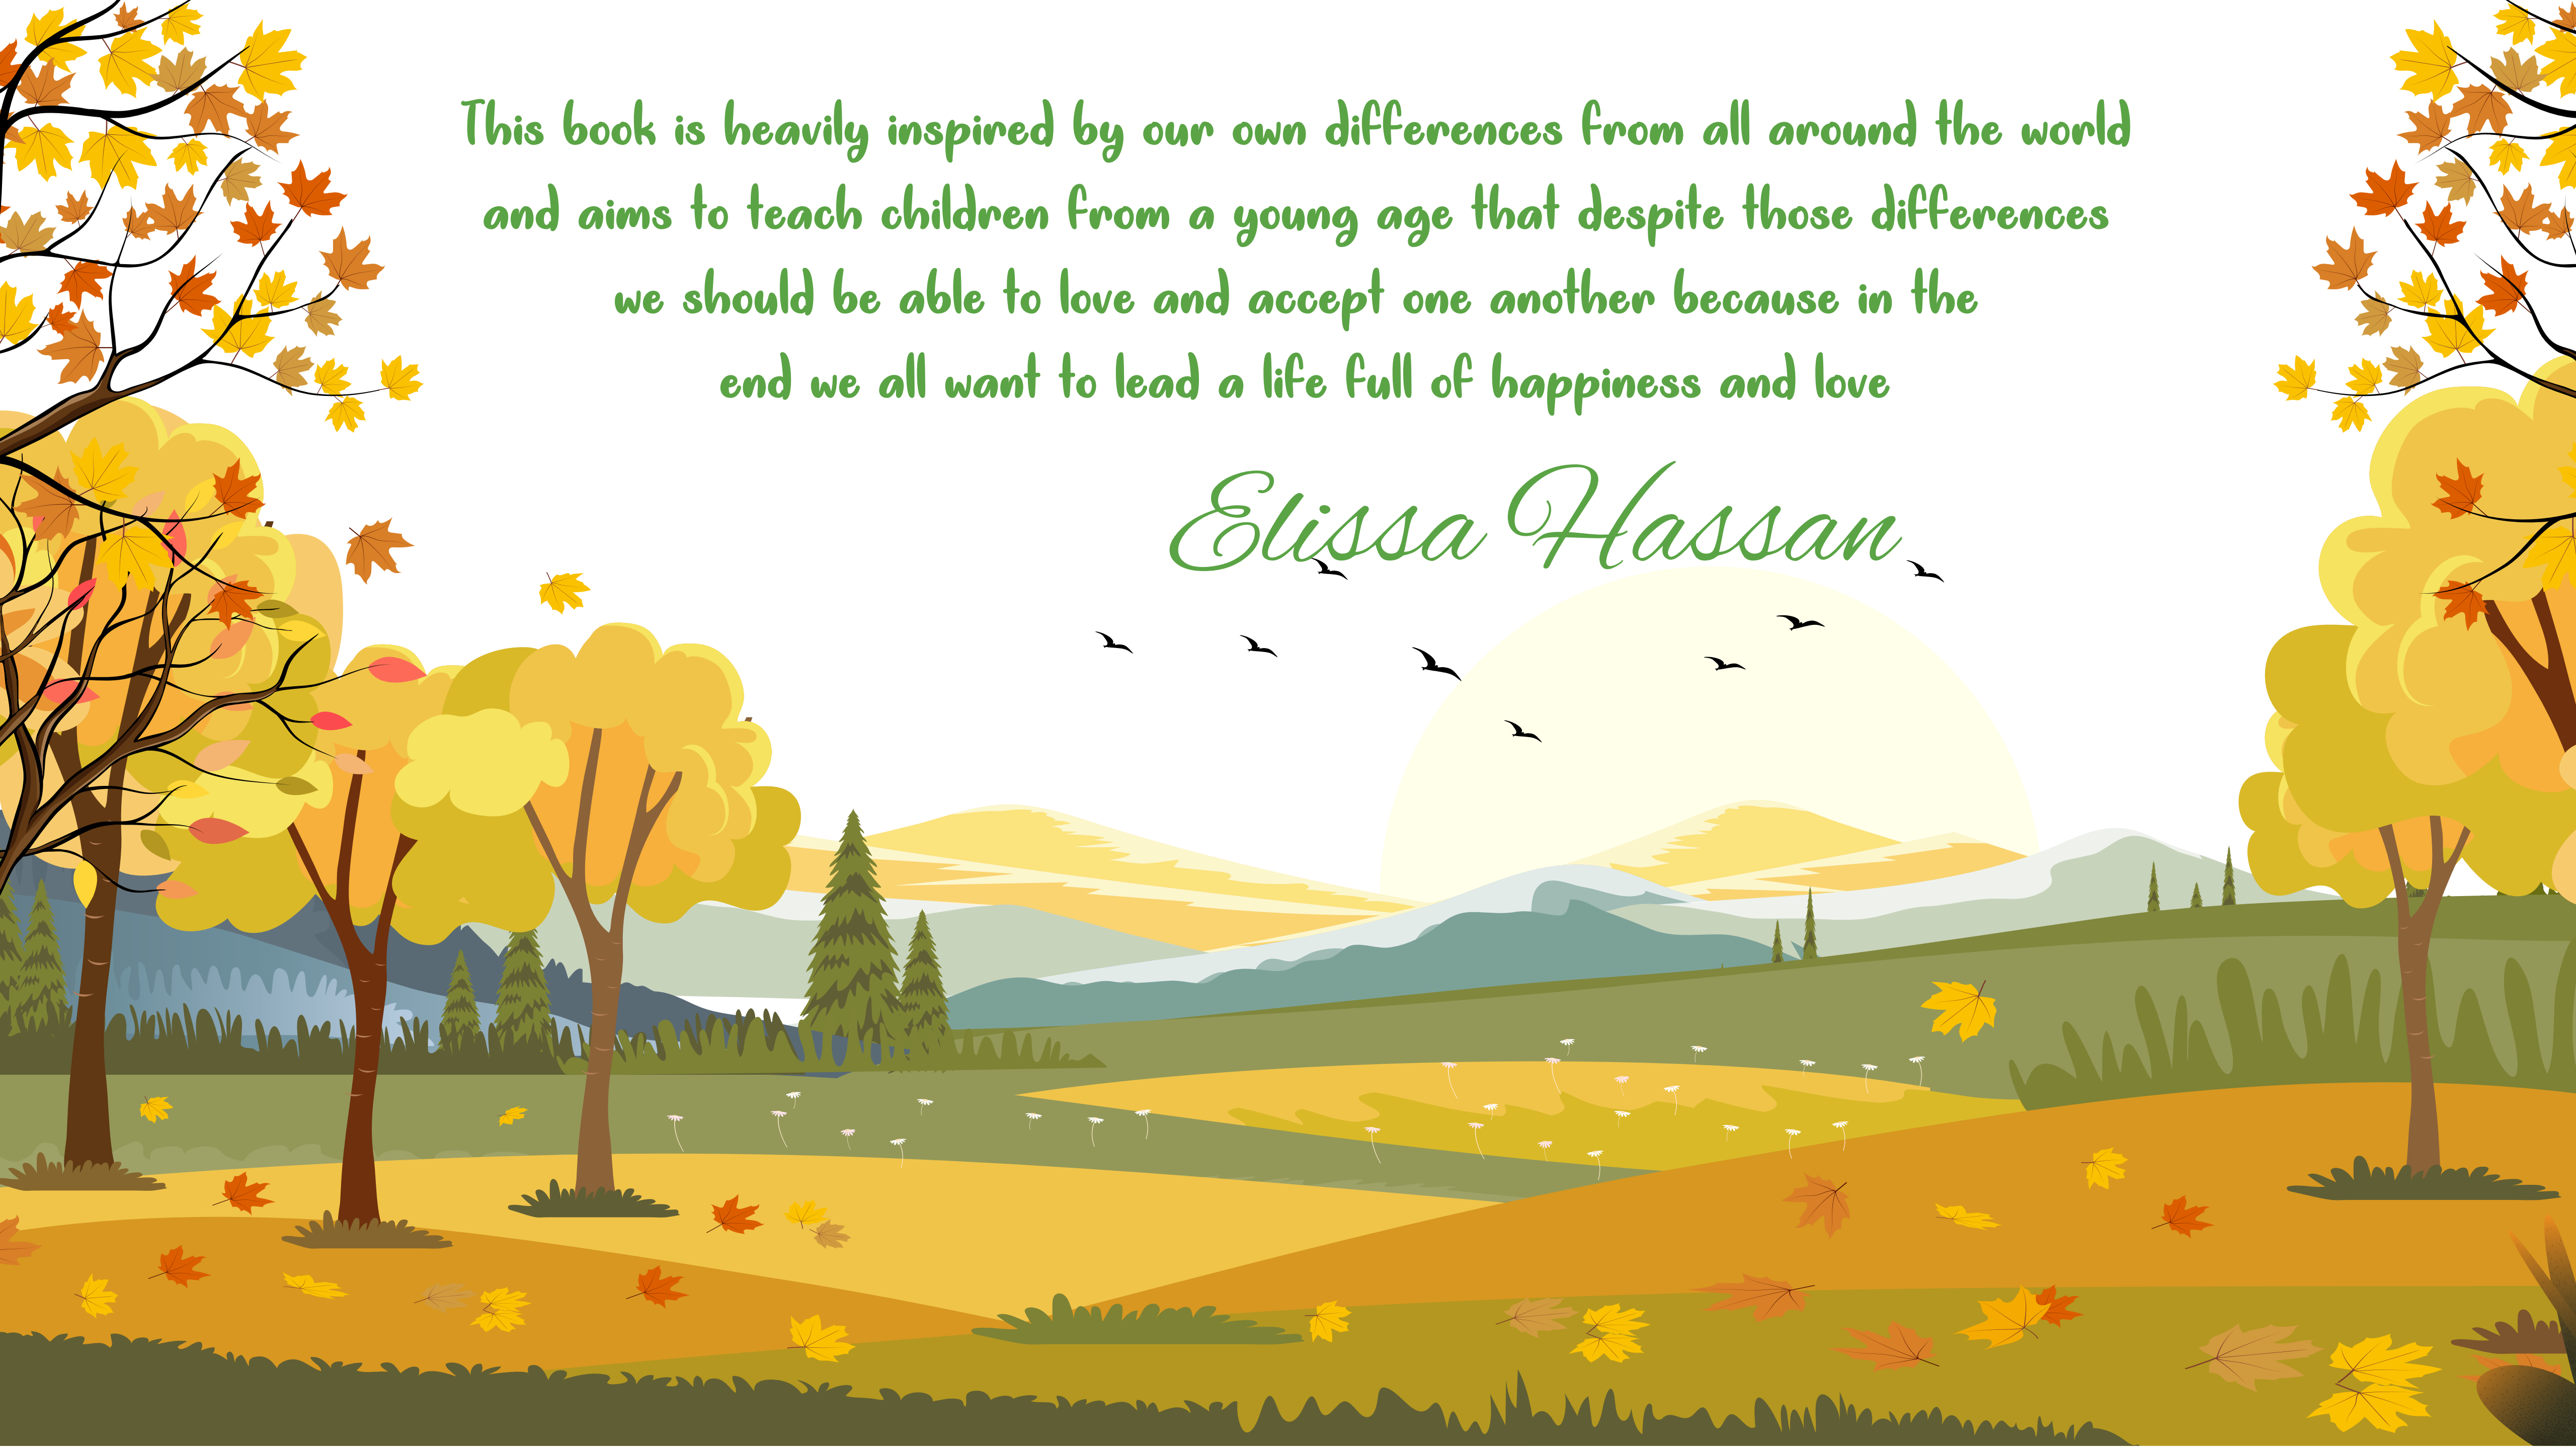

They treat each other right and fair

Because despite their differences they are the same

They all want to laugh and play without a care

This book is heavily inspired by our own differences from all around the world and aims to teach children from a young age that despite those differences we should be able to love and accept one another because in the end we all want to lead a life full of happiness and love
